

ARE YOU READY TO EVACUATE?

MARIN'S COUNTYWIDE COMMITMENT TO WILDFIRE SAFETY

Marin County has made evacuation readiness a top priority, and our community's safety depends on the ongoing, coordinated efforts of agencies, partners, and residents.

A Countywide Commitment to Preparedness

Today, Marin County's evacuation readiness reflects the tireless work of fire and police departments, emergency management, public works, Fire Safe Marin and community preparedness groups like Firewise. This shared commitment is the backbone of Marin's evacuation planning.

Investing in Technology and Training

Marin is leveraging cutting-edge technology to detect wildfires early and manage evacuations effectively. The County's alerting systems have been upgraded, and in the event of an evacuation, residents can access real-time information about affected areas at emergency.marincounty.gov.

Planning for Every Scenario

The Evacuation Ingress/Egress Risk Assessment identified hazards related to fire, roadways, and communications. The analysis helps identify "one way in, one way out" neighborhoods and informs evacuation planning, parking strategies and focused roadside vegetation clearance.

Innovating for the Future

Marin Wildfire recently commissioned an analysis of heat impacts during evacuations, identifying which roads are safe to travel and where roadside vegetation management is most needed. It also estimates how heat accumulates inside a car, guiding planning for safe shelters and traffic control training.

Learning, Drilling, and Sharing Best Practices

A voluntary evacuation drill is planned for Sept. 6. Residents will be encouraged to grab their go-bags, leave home, and check in at the Marin County Fairgrounds, during Ember Stomp Wildfire Prevention Festival. There, they'll learn about defensible space, home hardening, and evacuation readiness.

Click here for additional details and to sign up.

A Shared Responsibility

Evacuation readiness is an ongoing process, and most importantly, the commitment of our entire community. Residents are urged to review their local evacuation maps, sign up for ALERTMARIN, and participate in drills.

Click here to read the full article from the Marin Voice

For more information visit:

FireSafeMarin.org | Emergency.Marincounty.gov | MarinWildfire.org